CRISIS IN STRIKE IS TYING UP G. BRITAIN

Limited Service On The British Railways Was Promised Monday

STRIKE'S UNPOPULAR

Return Of Strikers To Posts Expected Within Two Days

LONDON, Sept 29—Great Britain, a nation without transportation, expected today that the next 48 hours would prove the most critical period of the railway strike Today and tomorrow, it was believed would show whether the walkout would be broken soon, or whether the nation would have to face a long siege

While all the strikers readily accepted the opportunity for a week end holiday, it was believed today that many of them were becoming desperate over the public's hostility and were likely to resume work

The government promised limited service on the railroads today It was expected that naval stokers and engineers would be utilized in this effort. The depots at Portsmouth and Chatham were scenes of the liveliest activity and the first battle squadron had been ordered to proceed from Scarborough to the Thames

The completeness of the government's plan has surprised the strikers. The traffic system was unchanged. Pending the government's attempt to operate train service, travel remained as difficult as when the strike began. Arrangements for the distribution of food are proceeding smoothly an official statement issued from Downing-st declared.

It was stated immediate use will be made of offers of service which were pouring in from all parts of the country.

J H. Thomas, secretary of the railway union, declared today

"Conditions will be worse today and every subsequent day. The government need have no hope of breaking the strike."

He said the strike could be settled in an hour if the government granted to the other grades of railway workers the same concessions of principle made to the drivers and firemen

London is like a city in a state of siege—besieged by a section of its own population The full extent of the strike is gradually sinking into the minds of the people and affecting every person in one way or another The economic machinery of war time has been revived, rigid war rations are imposed as strictly as when the channel ports were threatened, and last night, London groped about in war time darkness All unnecessary illumination was suspended.

Coal dealers were notified their sales must be rationed.

The government's efforts to operate a skelton service were partially successful today on both local and long distance lines Trains were manned by volunteers and loyal employes who are not members of the union.

The boat train running from London to Folkstone departed on time. The London Southwestern road is running electric trains to the suburban districts south of the Thames, maintaining half hour service. The trains are operated by union men who refused to strike.

MARGARET COLLMER ASKS FOR DIVORCE

Margaret Collmer has commenced suit in common pleas court against W. F. Collmer, asking divorce, alimony and custody of their adopted daughter, Ruth Collmer. They were married November 2, 1910. The plaintiff charges her husband with gross neglect of duty alleging that while they lived in Canton and other places he failed to provide sufficient clothing and she was compelled to work for a living altho her husband was earning about $200 per month. She alleges that he has a violent disposition and constantly uses vulgar language and has published notices in the papers of the towns where they resided to storekeepers and others that he would not be responsible for any debts or goods purchased by her. She says she was obliged to leave their home in Canton last February and return to the home of her mother in Coshocton. T. H. Wheeler is her attorney.

"The price may be raised soon," says Mr. Burrell

INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE TO BE HELD

Round Table Discussion At Washington October Sixth Not Postponed

WASHINGTON, Sept 29 — The round table industrial conference, set for October 6, will meet despite the illness of President Wilson, it was said at the white house today

The president, however, will probably be unable to take any part in the sessions. It was also definitely announced today that the king and queen of Belgium will tour the country before coming to Washington to be the guests at the white house. Original plans were for the royal couple to come here first.

President Wilson had a restless night, but is sleeping this morning, a bulletin issued by Dr Cary Grayson, the president's physician said today.

President Wilson, as soon as his health permits, is expected to issue a statement containing a number of arguments for ratification of the peace treaty, which his breakdown prevented him from making in speeches at Little Rock, Oklahoma City, Memphis and Louisville.

Before he became ill, it was learned that he had "something up his sleeve" that he was saving ammunition for the concluding addresses of his tour. His idea apparently was to finish his drive for ratification in such a manner that world wide attention would be riveted on it, returning to Washington primed for a showdown on acceptance or rejection of the treaty. Illness prevented this climax. It was considered likely today he would take the first opportunity to make use of his prize arguments by the issuance of this statement.

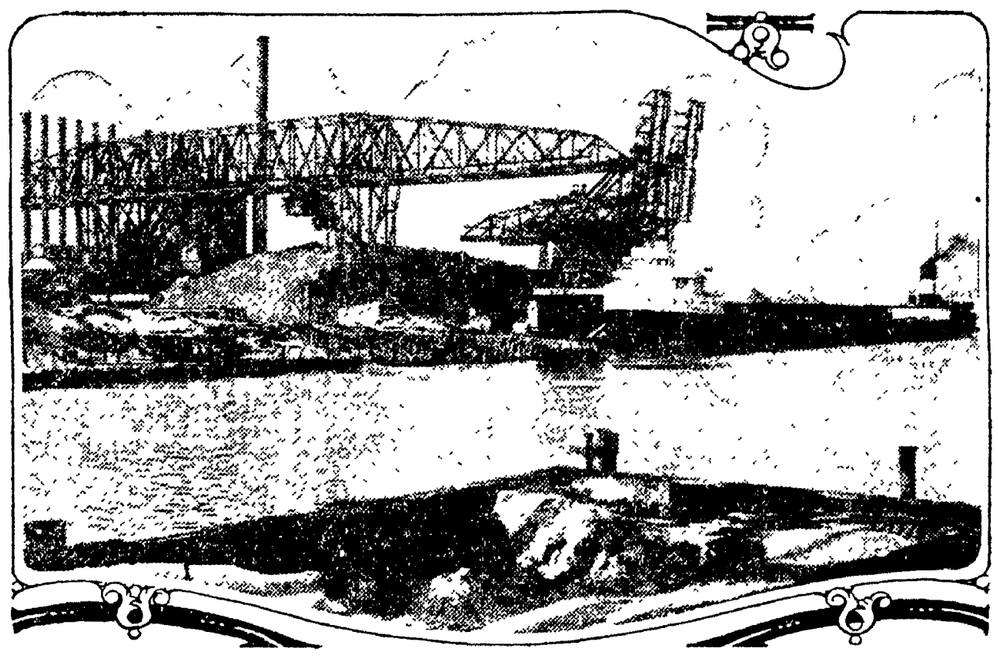

There was much talk here today of the industrial conference scheduled for October sixth, either being called off or postponed.

Dissatisfaction has been expressed with the president's choice of men to represent the general public at the conference. The protest of it being held failed to avert the steel strike. And the president himself, who planned to address the conference and participate in it, is prevented by illness from so doing. It was suggested today that his breakdown might cause this "round table" to be cancelled and another one called later.

Wilson is still holding to his position that the industrial situation cannot permanently be stabilized and

Entries Pouring In A Week In Advance And Many Concessions Have Been Sold—Display Halls To Be Filled To Their Utmost Capacity—Special Rates On The Railroads

The Coshocton County Fair, famous thruout Ohio and neighboring states, will hold full sway all next week Like Christmas and the Fourth of July, its approach has an electrifying effect upon old and young and there isn't a week in the whole year that is so filled with excitement and enjoyment as county fair week

Secretary W B Miller is delighted over the prospects this year The World War with its blighting effect has passed into history and there is every reason to believe that the fair next week will be the greatest ever held "We never had half as many concessions," said Secretary Miller Monday. A special feature of this year's fair will be a spacious dance pavilion, under canvas, which will be located on the grounds G. R Gilbert, Niles, O., has secured the dance privilege The floor is exceptionally fine and is about 60 square feet Orchestra music will be furnished. The dancing will be conducted on the park plan.

OHIO GUARD HELD READY FOR CRISIS

Threatened Invasion Of W. Virginia Is Called Off At Steubenville

COLUMBUS, O, Sept 29 The Ohio National Guard was mobilized today and "ready for any emergency" It was believed the order to assemble the guard, which was issued by Governor Cox late yesterday, is a reply to the threat of 5,000 strikers in the Steubenville Ohio district to march in to West Virginia today to force a strike of steel workers in Weirton

Governor Cornwell, West Virginia, notified Governor Cox he would consider any such move as an attack on the sovereignty of West Virginia

Strike leaders at Steubenville said they would restrain the proposed invasion if possible Thomas I Donnelly, secretary of the Ohio Federation of Labor addressed a strikers' committee and urged cancellation of the march

On the West Virginia side, it was reported that police, deputy sheriffs and mounted officers were prepared to cope with the situation Hundreds of

So goes the tale credited to James and Fred Moore, Franklin-tp

It all came about when the Moore brothers accumulated more beans than they knew how to hull Then they captured an extra large 'coon, weighing so the story says, about 18 pounds The animal showed lots of fight and a bright idea occurred to the Moore brothers

THIRTY OF MOB THAT LYNCHED NEGRO AND BURNED COURT HOUSE HELD WITHOUT BAIL

Mayor Narrowly Escapes Hanging When Mob's Demands for Colored Assailant of White Girl are Refused—Black's Body, Riddled With Shot, Dragged Thru Principal Streets and Burned in Negro District.

OMAHA, NEB., Sept. 29. — Martial law was declared in Omaha today. Sixteen hundred soldiers patrolled the streets. Machine guns were mounted in the vicinity of the court house and in the negro district. Mobs had dispersed and the situation appeared under control of the soldiers.

Summed up, results of 18 hours of riot rule in Omaha follows: Will Brown, negro identified by Agnes Loeback, 19, as the man who assaulted her, lynched and his body burned.

Mayor Edward P. Smith in a serious condition at a hospital suffering from injuries inflicted by the mob.

Douglas county's court house, newly built at a cost of $1,500,000 in ruins from fire.

E. Clancy, shot and killed, and fifty-six others injured.

Mayor Smith narrowly escaped the fate of the negro when he defied the mob. His last words, mumbled while almost unconscious from beatings he had received and with the rope around his neck were:

"I'll give my life if necessary, but I'll not surrender the negro. I'm going to enforce the law." The mayor's life was saved when the rope was cut from around his neck while he was being lifted from the ground.

The mayor was rushed to a hospital in a passing automobile Physicians said this morning that his condition is critical, but that he would probably recover.

From six o'clock last night until troops arrived this morning, the mob was in control Men, women and children, filling the streets around the court house, went wild Pawn shops and hardware stores were looted to obtain firearms and ammunition. Every policeman on the streets was overpowered, their clubs taken from them and many seriously beaten

Sheriff Michael Clark and his deputies successfully held the crowd, howling for the negro's life, at bay, until the court house was set afire. Gasoline was poured on the first floor and the torch applied Police extinguished this blaze, but the mob obtained more gasoline and soon flames were shooting from the first second

BETHELEHEM STRIKE IS A FAILURE

Secretary Foster Says It Is Success — Little Change Elsewhere

The steel workers' attempt to extend the nationwide strike to the Bethlehem Steel Company apparently failed today Reports indicated that in most of the Bethlehem mills the response was so limited that production will be but little affected In South Bethlehem, Pa, less than 20 per cent of the men failed to report this morning, it was said At Steelton and Titusville, Pa, practically a full force was reported Employes at the Sparrowspoint, Md, plant voted yesterday against joining the strike and the plant was in operation today

Aside from the apparently initial failure of the Bethlehem strike, the steel workers appeared to be losing ground in their fight for unionization of the United States Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries In the all important Pittsburg district reports indicated an increasing number of men returning to work The Carnegie Steel Company was particularly optimistic The situation in Gary and Chicago showed little change

Secretary W Z Foster, of the national committee for organizing iron and steel workers today said report from organizers indicated a "complete success" of the strike of Bethlehem employes Foster stated a wire from David Williams, organizer in the Allentown district asserted the Bethlehem mills "were down"

Foster said the Jones & Laughlin plants were operating at about 50 per cent of capacity

CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Sept 29—Dock workers here went out on a sympathetic strike with steel workers today, according to H W Raisse, steel strike leader in the Cleveland district.

Unloading of coal and shipment of supplies to steel plants in Ohio and Pennsylvania will be seriously affected, Raisse said

All steel mills here were still closed today and no effort is being made to reopen them

LORAIN

LORAIN, O, Sept 29—The steel strike situation here is unchanged. The National Tube Company plant is operating in full. The steel workers did not meet yesterday as was re-

THE GAS SITUATION.

With the usual cunning of the gas companies and the corresponding stupidity of municipalities, Coshocton has again allowed the gas company to precipitate a fuel fight on the threshold of winter when the latter is in a position to freeze the city into submission

It is a significant phase of the situation that one never hears of a gas franchise renewal or any dispute with a gas company coming up in the spring or early summer. This would allow the people time to acquaint themselves with the situation and give public authorities a chance to make a finish fight

This city was frozen into submission three years ago next December and councilmen tacitly admit that the same fate is staring our people in the face today Winter will be on us in a few weeks and the theories of the present as to what can be done will then be converted into solid facts involving what we will have to do or see helpless old men and women and babies die of exposure

Councilmen are already citing instances of letters received from people too destitute to make the change from gas to coal in the short time remaining before the advent of cold weather. From the viewpoint of the private monopolists of one of nature's gifts, this is simply good business and sentiment is never allowed to interfere with business And figuring out just such pleasant surprises for municipalities as was handed this city a few days ago these monopolists doubtless congratulate themselves on their foresight and astuteness

Other cities are facing the same inhuman prospect that confronts Coshocton and in this fact lies a suggestion of future action One city can do little or nothing A number of cities could compel a showdown and the result might be agreeably surprising That the monopolists are telling the truth about the gas supply no one believes, least of all themselves A united effort on the part of fifty or more gas consuming Ohio cities would at least develop a number of interesting facts about the corporate existence of a lot of so called gas companies which in fact exist on paper alone

If we have got to come to manufactured gas we believe a large majority of our people will agree to the fact that it should be supplied by the city and not by any of the gas companies with which we have been dealing in recent years In this connection the following editorial from a recent edition of The Toledo News Bee makes interesting reading This editorial is reproduced herewith in full

The reason for the demand for increased rates made by some natural gas companies in Ohio is becoming apparent

These gas interests many of them subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Co believe that the supply of natural gas will be exhausted in the next few years and that artificial gas will take its place

With customary Standard Oil vision they see that it will be good business to obtain control of the artificial gas supply as a successor of their present and past monopoly of natural gas

The machinery for the monopoly of artificial gas exists in part in each company's ownership of the pipe system thru the streets and into the homes

The gas companies are now maneuvering in subtle fashion to secure high rate for the artificial gas of the future

They have played their first card By threatening to shut off gas in one or more cities they figure on scaring other communities into the belief that they will suffer in winter or have their gas shut off entirely This fear is expected to make Ohio cities stand for higher rates

The scheme would bear full fruit later on when artificial gas is turned into the natural gas mains

The companies could point to artificial gas higher ratio of price over natural gas price when the price of natural gas was low

By maintaining this ratio they would be able to put across higher artificial gas rates than would be permitted if present natural gas rates continue and are the basis of the increase

The cunning strategy can be checkmated by the cities The gas situation in Ohio is a simple problem in retail merchandising The gas companies are like chain stores with a single ownership The cities are the customers

As in the case of any business with a monopoly in its selling field, one customer's complaints are as water on a duck's back

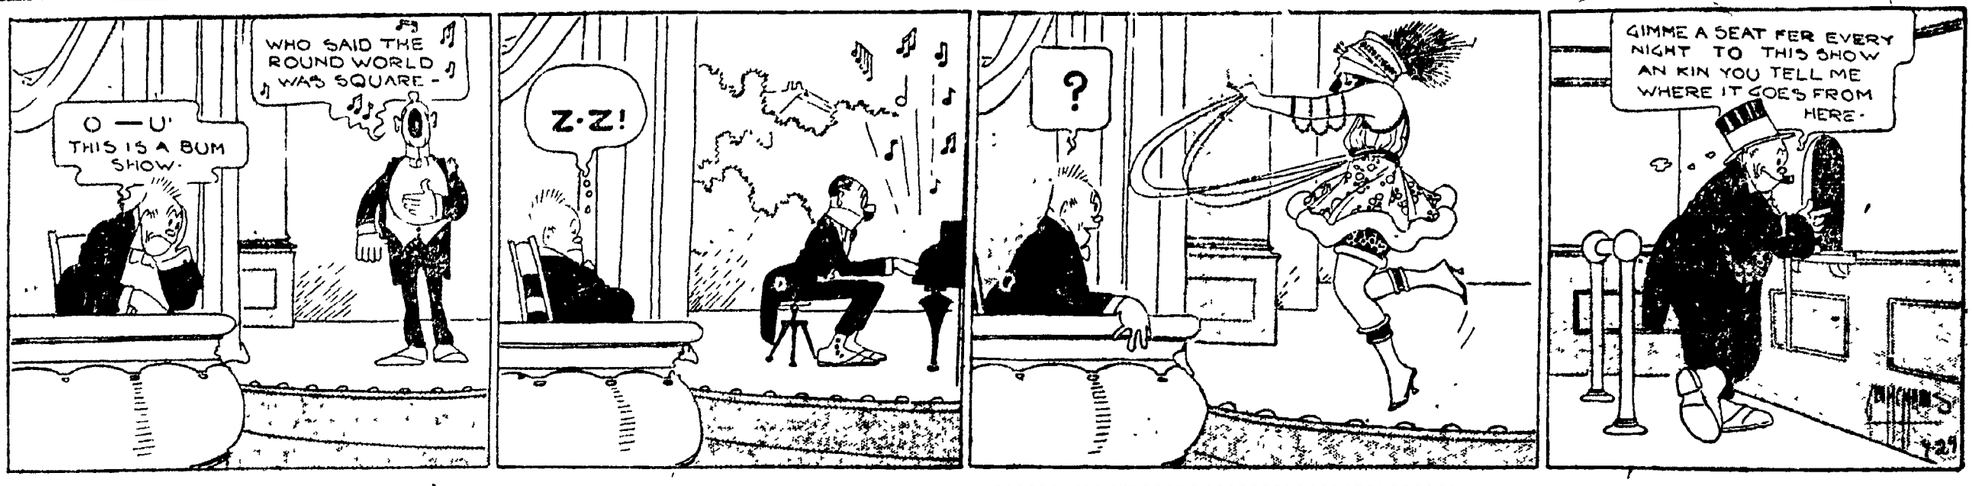

But let all customers unite and the business can be brot to terms. Such uniting by the cities to present a solid front to the gas interests is in process of formation in the proposed league of cities

The city councils of every Ohio municipality using either natural or artificial gas should join this league just as Ohio councils thru their prosecuting attorneys united for action against food law violators.

EATING

I have just come back from dinner and I ate an hour or so, and that dinner was a winner, taking it as dinners go First there was a roast of mutton and I chewed away with zeal till there wasn't left a button on the north side of my vest There were beets and sweet potatoes, and some prune juice, extra dry macaroni with tomatoes, and I finished up with pie Now I have the indigestion, and my works fierce ructions raise, and with me it is a question whether eating truly pays. If we just would cut out eating we could save a lot of rocks, salt them down and keep repeating, in the safe deposit box We would prosper like the dickens put all kinds of wealth away, if we'd cut out veal and chickens and be satisfied with hay But so few of us are able to accumulate a bone! On the ample dinner table all our revenue is thrown Then our innards get to balking, underneath the victuals' heft, and the doctor comes a-docking, and he takes what coin is left. Oh, the druggists round me frolic, pouring nostrums into me, for I have spasmodic colic, and I am a sight to see. So it scarcely is surprising that a pain-tormented dub feels so much like moralizing on the vanity of grub.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

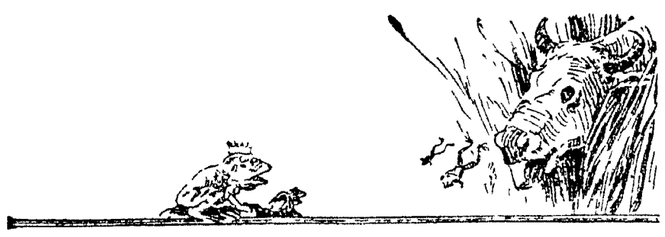

Aesop Revised The Fable of the Ambitious Frog

A frog there lived upon a time—a frog of stature so sublime
That all the frogs in all the bogs
For half a mile around him
Impressed by his heroic size, remarked with hoarse batrachian cries:
'A monarch he was born to be!"
And reverently crowned him.

But when, next day, an ox there passed, the subject frogs fell back aghast,
"Besides that thing," said they, "our king
Will cut a sorry figger
If he don't want to be dethroned and most incontinently stoned
Upon the spot he's simply got
To grow a whole lot bigger."

The monarch shy of such a fate, proceeded promptly to inflate
The space inside his paunchy hide
With muscular contortions
He cut out meals abandoned sleep, and at the art of breathing deep
He toiled like mad until he had,
Quadrupled his proportions

You say "By false ambition cursed not course the foolish reptile burst."
But he did not he simply got
So full of pep and muscle,
That the remainder of his reign he kept a cinch on his domain
Which shows what man accomplish can
If he'll jump in and hustle

One may be startled at first when Miss Burr comes in to greet you, wearing satin "kickers" and middy blouse, but she is so utterly sure of herself that she carries it off without making her seem an eccentric. It is a great place for inspiration. At one time as many as eight authors were writing novels within the walls of the old inn.

"The Reliable Jeweler"

EVERY MEMBER OF MY FAMILY TAKES THE NEW REMEDY

Columbus Contractor Got so Much Good from Dreco, Puts the Others to Taking It Also.

Here is a strong endorsement given to Dreco, the new herbal remedy, by a substantial citizen of Columbus. O. He is Mr. P. W. Wilson, a contractor having lived in South End for the past six years, and is the proud father of two children. He says:

"The cases I read about in the papers seemed to fit mine exactly, so I got a bottle of Dreco. I stayed bilious all the time and gastritis attacked me after each meal. I had a burning sensation in my stomach. My kidneys seemed to be deranged, and I had to get up several times during the night; my back was weak and often ached.

"I've finished my first bottle, and now I want some more, for I want every member of my family to take Dreco. It has done me worlds of good, and I strongly recommend it."

Persons suffering from constipation weak kidneys, sluggish liver, poor digestion, or stomach trouble of any kind, are advised to give Dreco, the great root and herb remedy, a trial. It overcomes gastritis, indigestion, and dyspepsia, aiding the stomach to carry its load Rouses a sluggish liver to healthy action; gives strength to weakened deranged kidneys; relieves constipation; induces sound, refreshing sleep, and increases the appetite, thereby giving renewed vigor and strength to the vital organs.

All good druggists now sell Dreco and it is highly recommended in Coshocton by Page & Lorenz.

EATONIC

SAYS SHE WAS IN DREAD OF AN OPERATION

Well Known Columbus Lady Gives Enthusiastic Testimonials for the New Herbal Stomach Medicine—Plant Juice.

Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, relieves all of these conditions, as verified by the signed statements of local people, who have regained their health through the use of this great remedy.

For instance, Mrs F M. Barnes, who lives at No. 558 East Gates St., Columbus, and is prominently identified in church work in this city, being an active member of the Methodist church, with hosts of friends, recently stated:

"For over a year I have been troubled with my stomach, and my food would ferment and cause gas to form there I was bloated and in the most dreadful misery, I could not sleep at night I was nervous, was so constipated and had a smothered feeling caused by the gas pressing against my heart. I was told that I would have to have an operation, which I did not want to do I had read so much about the cures that Plant Juice was making in our city that I decided to get a bot tle and try it, as I was fully determined to give Plant Juice a trial before I would submit to an operation. After taking it for several weeks I can truthfully say that I can eat anything I want and digest it, I sleep well and am just feeling fine I am glad to recommend Plant Juice, as it has put me on my feet again."

Such words as these, and those of many others which have been printed, have wide influence, for they come from people of standing and integrity, who have given Plant Juice a fair trial and have been greatly benefited thereby

ANTI-WILSON REPORTS FLY THRU ITALY

ROME, Sept. 29.—(Delayed)- Rome awoke today to the cries of newsboys "Wilson denies Fiume to Italy."

Thruout the day the conflicting reports continued to circulate.

First—That there was a Paris report declaring president Wilson had proposed creation of a separate buffer state, with Fiume as the capital. This version of the president's reply painfully impressed those who are acquainted with the seriousness of the internal situation resulting from the attitude of the army and navy.

Later, there was a report that Wilson had demanded the Italian government to expel D'Annunzio from Fiume and restore order, threatening Italy with an economic blockade.

Tomorrow Foreign Minister Tittoni is expected to communicate Wilson's attitude to the chamber.

Two resolutions introduced in the chamber, provide for the annexation of Fiume.

The County Farmer

A Department Conducted In the Interest of Scientific, Efficient Farming. By G. C. Musgrove, Coshocton-co Farm Agent, National Bank-bldg., Coshocton, Ohio.

The Great Need

Since coming to this county as agricultural agent, many times the question has been asked what is the greatest need of the agriculture of Coshocton-co? These questions have not all been answered, because at the time they were asked the observation and information at hand, was too inadequate to permit a definite reply, but after quite extensive observation and investigation, the fact stands before us that we need the application of the very fundamentals of agriculture, or successful farming, better livestock, lime, legumes, adequate applications of phosphorus and drainage in wet bottoms. These are essentials. The livestock improvement, we will discuss at a later date, but what our soil needs will be discussed now.

Lime

Lime is necessary to correct the acidity of the soil, but why do soils become acid? By continued use and abuse.

The decomposition of plants form organic acids, the sweet or alkaline substances are leached out by continued rains. This is especially true in soils low in decayed organic matter or humus. These soils are made up of residue, silica, caolin minerals and many times of iron substances or compounds.

On lands low in fertility and sour or of an acid nature, the addition of finely ground limestone is the practical method of overcoming this condition.

The basic nature of the limestone unites with the acidity of the soil, neutralizing it, and frees valuable plant foods for use on crops that follow. Or in other words brings it nearer to where it was, in a natural state, before man cultivated and used it for his purpose.

The subject of lime and legumes are so closely related that they can be discussed together. As most legumes require a sweet soil before they can be grown successfully the application of lime is the insurance to the growth of legumes. No farmer can afford to use a rotation of crops that does not contain a legume, and the more legumes he puts in his rotation the more successful he will be, as the legumes take the nitrogen from the air, for the use of the crops that are to follow. There is eleven million dollars worth of nitrogen over each acre of soil, and you can write checks on that deposit, only by growlegumes.

The experiment station at Wooster shows that the application of legumes during a five year rotation brings $25 to $30 return per rotation of corn, oats, wheat, clover and timothy.

Phosphorus

Phosphorus pays 600 per cent on investment on general farm crops.

The application of nitrogen has not paid the cost of its application. In fact, a bushel of wheat produced by the application of nitrogen costs you $4.87. Potash shows little better results, but when phosphorus was added to both or one of these, the yield immediately jumped. The application of phosphorus during the total of 76 years of experiments at Wooster, Germantown, Strongville and Carpenter, shows that an average application of 140 pounds made an average increase per acre of 6 1-8 bushels of wheat. Now if 140 pounds make an increase of 6 1-8, one ton will make an increase of 87 bushels. Figure this at $2.15 per bushel and you will have $188.00, and one ton of acid phosphate should cost you about $25. Now if you pay the cost of one ton of acid phosphate, you will have left $163, which will be 650 per cent on your investment, after you have paid the principal. You can see for yourself that this is a pretty good investment, especially when this investment can be made right on your own farm, which will not break up, bust up, burn up, or blow away. It was also found in this work that 140 pounds was not sufficient to supply the amount of phosphate needed in the soil and that it needed the application of from two to three hundred pounds per acre. One of our district stations is showing that even an application of 720 pounds, is practical. But somebody asked the question, why do we need the phosphate? In order to answer it is only necessary to look about you. Whenever you sell off a thousand pound steer you are selling off as much phosphorus, in his bones, as can be supplied in 100 pounds of 16 per cent phosphoric acid. Every time you sell off sheep, hogs, poultry or any type of livestock, you are selling off phosphorus. When you sell hay or grain, or forage of any kind, or any other farm crop, unless it is cane, or beet sugar, you are selling off phosphorus.

You can take the nitrogen out of the air by growing legumes, and unlock the potash, but you can not get phosphorus out of the air, and the only way to get it is to apply something that carries it. The three carriers of phosphate are bone meal, basic slag and acid phosphate. The form that you are interested in, is the one in which you can buy one pound of phosphorus the cheapest, and will return you the most per dollar invested. After you have paid the principal, bone meal will pay you about 300 per cent, basic slag 400 per cent and acid phosphate 600 to 650 per cent. Either one is a good investment, but no one can afford to make anything but the best investment.

Drainage

Some of our land is in great need of drainage, and no great change can be made until tiles are put in, to take the water away, and get the air into the soil.

Expect Dry Compromise

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—While Senate and House conferees today failed to reach an agreement on the prohibition enforcement bill senators of the conference committee say they had made to house members a proposal that would lead to a settlement.

MILLS ARE CLOSED

SALEM, MASS., Sep. 29.—More than 1600 mill operatives were idle here today. Owners of the Naumkeag Mills decided to close their doors late yesterday because of a strike of employes who are demanding a 25 per cent increase in wages.

Financial Letter

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.

The Great Labor Crisis

American labor is now passing thru the greatest crisis in its history. It stands at the parting of the ways, and is divided between the choice of following radical or conservative leadership. The former is alien to American ideals and leads to industrial chaos and disaster. The latter stands for real Americanism, and leads to peaceful adjustments step by step between capital and labor. Which way will labor go? Much depends upon the great international labor conference which begins October 6 at Washington. In that convocation at least reason will rule and not force. Discussion must clear the atmosphere; each will better understand the problems of the others, and passion on both sides will be held in check. President Wilson is expected to make important suggestions; and, whether they be accepted or not, there is little doubt that the way will be opened toward better working relations between capital and labor. Perhaps the actual gain will be small; but a real step should be taken in the right direction, and some progress made toward the open field and fair play which is the only amicable course for progress in all human interchanges.

The Steel Strike

It is unfortunate that the steel strike should have been precipitated at this juncture, since it tends to raise passion and confuse great issues when cool reason is most needed. Labor as a whole still insists upon its policy of more pay and less work; and, altho since the war began wages of organized labor have advanced 100 per cent, hours have been reduced 10 per cent and efficiency in many instances is only 80 per cent of normal, these concessions have not satisfied but only inreased the appetite for more. It is to be supposed that intelligent labor does not grasp the fact that the cost of living cannot be lowered by raising wages and lowering the output. Individually, labor must be conscious that the only cure for high prices is to increase the output and seek plenty rather than scarcity; but, collectively, it refuses to recognize or act upon any such ideas. Such a state of mind of course hurts labor more than any other interest, and can only be attributed to the worldwide strain and upset following the great war. Perhaps it is part of the universal scramble to get more without any regard to the interests or rights of others. Either thru reason, or thru hardships which no one desires to see, the way back to more normal relations must be found. Between capital and labor a better understanding must be reached. Some form of co-operation must be found if progress and prosperity are to continue; and the best way to reach such ends is to let by-gones be by-gones, and to open the way to discussion in a spirit of fair play and mutual consideration of each other's difficulties and points of view. If the great labor congress which assembles in a few days is conducted in such a spirit, great good may result and a new road blazed leading toward industrial peace and a more just distribution of the proceeds of industry.

The Closed Shop

Unionism is now an accepted factor in our economic machinery, and the closed shop in one of its most disputed features; for a monopoly of labor is quite as objectionable as a monopoly of capital. Being free of responsibility, labor has used its great powers much more tyrannically than capital. The latter in spite of its errors is necessarily constructive in its policies; while labor is too frequently destructive, especially in the direction of industrial freedom. The closed shop means an increased cost of living, less employment and less initiative, and a drift toward industrial decay. Imagine what will become of our great expectations in foreign trade if these tendencies continue; and how can American manufacturers compete with Germany, where the working men have gone on reord as favoring a "ten-hour day, no strikes, and no advance in wages?" At present there is a struggle between the conservatives and radicals for union leadership. If the conservatives are beaten, it will be a heavy blow to all that is good and desirable in American trade unionism. Sane and just leadership should receive nationwide support. Given a labor policy based on reason and justice, with ample respect for law and the rights of the public, and the unrest of today which has brot the business world to the edge of a precipice would quickly work out its own salvation.

Watchful Waiting In Trade.

General business naturally shows some hesitation pending an adjustment of present labor difficulties. In the steel trades there was increased caution in placing orders, nothwithstanding a hopeful undertone. Production must of course be reduced by shutdowns. Export orders have proved below early expectations owing to the exchange situation, as well as to increasing ability of European countries to meet their own reconstruction requirements. France has already rejected some very considerable American offers, preferring to give contracts to home concerns. Shipbuilding here is absorbing large amounts of steel; both government and private plants being fully occupied carrying out the present program. The development of an American merchant marine is progressing at a wonderful pace, and a number of important new shipping enterprises are in process of formation. This extraordinary expansion of American owned shipping is not yet fully appreciated except by the few. It is entirely due to the war; and, with about one quarter of the world's tonnage already in our possession, we now occupy the position of a good second to Great Britain, which is rapidly regaining its former preeminence of nearly one-half of the world's tonnage. Germany has meanwhile fallen almost to the bottom, and now owns only about four per cent of its former ocean tonnage. Our railroads are in serious need of new equipment, but such orders will of necessity be deferred as far as possible until the railroad problem is settled by congress, a task which should be completed in the early part of 1920 if not before the close of the present year. In the textile trades a much more conservative tone prevails. Buyers are growing cautious, and are less wiling to pay high prices, not caring to load up at current levels. Manufacturers are equally indisposed to raise prices; fearing a sudden reaction and recognizing the unwisdom of further increasing the cost of living, or of inciting the further jealousy of labor. Bankers also are discriminating somewhat in their advances with the purpose of discouraging speculation in merchandise. Thus far efforts by the government to lower the cost of living have not met with success commensurate with the efforts applied. The only true way of lowering prices is to lessen consumption or increase the product; neither of which means are probable under existing conditions.

Exchange and Foreign Trade.

Exchange continues its sensational movements, and there is active speculation in sterling, lire, francs and marks, all of which showed some recovery after again touching new low levels. August foreign trade returns showed exports of $656,000,000, or $119,000,000 more than a year ago and $76,000,000 more than in July. Imports reached $368,000,000, a gain of $273,000,000 compared with last year, and a loss of $35,000,000 compared with July. The excess of exports for August was $338,000,000, a much heavier balance than desirable. The encouraging feature however, is the growing tendency of imports, which tends to relieve exchange by natural means, and shows increasing ability on the part of Europe to pay in goods for American exports. It is not improbable that September will show further gains in our imports, proving that the drift is back to more normal conditions. The question of our granting foreign credits is still in abeyance pending ratification of the peace treaty, but tentative plans are being made that may be announced at the first favorable opportunity, tho if the treaty is delayed much longer further weakness may develop. The appointment of New York agents for the Belgian Treasury is a step of much significance, and may be followed by other nations. Belgium, however, is in a better financial condition than any other nation, owing to generous aid by the Allies and enforced restitution on the part of Germany. The latter is already seeking loans here, and in London also, it is reported.

Stock Market Conditions.

The market during the week has naturally been irregular and unsettled, due to the strike of the steel employes. While the strikers have been able to force a partial shutdown of some of the plants they have not met with the success they anticipated, and it now looks as if the strike would end with defeat.

The better element of the workers, even those who are union men, do not agree with the plan of Fitzpatrick and Foster and as the latter is preaching revolution, which is foreign to our form of government, all of the conservative leaders hesitate to fully endorse him. It may take several days or possibly several weeks to end the controversy, but every day that the wheels of the steel industry keep turning is an indication of the probable failure of the strikers to attain their object. Mr. Gary is defending a principle which is thoroly American in refusing to treat with any organization outside of his own employes. It has been generally believed that the U. S. Steel Corporation has always been most fair in the treatment of its workmen and during the present labor dispute I have read nothing that controverts such an opinion. I believe that the great majority of steel workers have been satisfied with the treatment they have received, but as they are unorganized they have not the same influence on the public mind the the unions who have unexcelled facilities for spreading their views broadcast thru their local representatives. While supporting orders have undoubtedly been placed in the stocks most threatened by the situation, it is evident that stock traders have not been greatly frightened and have not been forced to liquidate. Interest in railroad stocks is showing more activity. The lower priced rails are receiving increased attention, as many of them are selling on an attractive basis. With any definite plan worked out by congress to do justice to the stockholders railroad shares would at once become leaders in the market.

An expanding interest is evidenced in the Liberty bond market, which very naturally has shown steady appreciation ever since the publication of the secretary of the treasury's encouraging statement regarding the position of the treasury. Knowledge that the war finance corporation was operating for the account of the government sinking fund and a somewhat easier trend in the money market have acted as a further stimulant to public interest. The most conspicuous movements have been in the second 4's and the second 4½'s, which during the week have scored an advance of over 100 points. This should not be surprising, however, when it is realized that they have for a long time been selling far below their value and out of line with the rest of the Liberty bond market. In the light of their recent advance the wonder is that these bonds were allowed to lie so long on the bargain counter without attracting the attention of both large and small investors.

MINERS MAY JOIN BRITISH STRIKERS

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The whole nation is crippled by the strike which has practically halted every means of transportation today.

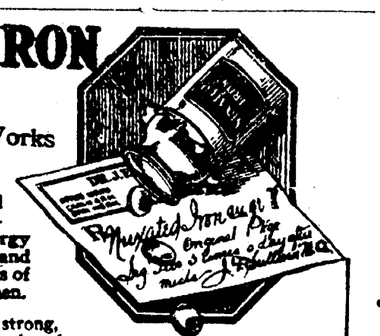

The strike was called by the National Railway Union and the effect of the walkout was felt in every section of Britain. The fear is expressed that the miners and transportation workers would join unless the trouble is settled without delay. Sir Eric Geddes believes the strike will be thoro but brief.

NUXATED IRON

"Say, Doctor, This Prescription Works Like Magic."

Physician Says Nuxated Iron Quickly Puts Astonishing Strength and Energy Into the Veins of Men and Brings Roses to the Cheeks of Nervous, Run-Down Women.

Ask the first hundred strong, healthy people you meet to what they owe their strength and see how many reply "Nuxated Iron." Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Thousands of people suffer from iron deficiency but do not know what to take. There is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron, to enrich the blood, make beautiful, healthy women, and strong, vigorous iron men. To make absolutely sure that my patients get real organic iron and not some form of the metallic variety, I always prescribe Nuxated Iron in its original packages. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time in many instances."

Nuxated Iron may be obtained from any good druggist with or without a physician's prescription on an absolute manufacturers' guarantee of success or money refunded.

FARM BUREAU NEWS NOTES

We often hear the cry "America must gain the industrial leadership of the world." That sounds all right but along with this statement goes the further information, "America must have cheap food in order to gain the industrial leadership of the world." What do you think of this, brother farmer? Do you think this country can gain industrial leadership and the laborer be satisfied with low wages? If the worker receives high wages can you secure cheap help on the farm? If you cannot secure cheap help can you produce cheap food and not come to poverty, or tenancy, or both? Are you willing that the great farming class of America shall be sacrificed to the desire of the other classes to make this nation the industrial leader of the world? If they wish to carry out their wishes how are you going to prevent it? Are the laboring men, the business and professional men capable of understanding the farmer's side of the question? They say the Lord cares for the child and the drunkard because they cannot care for themselves. Are you relying upon the same kind of care, feeling secure that you and your dad and your grandpap have so far in life's game come out fairly well and that you need not fear the future for you and your children? Let me say something real mean right here. The city papers have always pictured the farmer as a boob, he is called "Hayseed," "Rube," or "Corn-tassel," by some, and simply ignored by others. When I was in my teens I was ashamed to say that I lived on a farm because I could plainly understand that farm folk were objects of derision. Farming as an occupation has much better standing today, but, the farmers are not taking the lead in settling problems of their country and their times as they should. The farmer of average intelligence who refuses to awake and read events, and, from the present tendencies fortell something of the future, and neglects to place himself in line with those who are working for safety and progress, I say this farmer is a boob. Who is turning the tide of public events in our country today, the three million members of the Federation of Labor or the thirteen million unorganized farmers? To whom do our politicians cater, the city laborer who works ten or eight hours per day and is reaching out for a six hour day, or the farmer who works anywhere from twelve to sixteen hours a day and chores about six hours on Sunday? Do I hear the word "pessimist?" Let me quote from high authority.

While our president was in Paris he sent the following message: "The labor program which the Conference of Peace has adopted as part of the treaty of peace constitutes one of the most important achievements of the new day in which the interests of labor are to be systematically and intelligently safe-guarded and promoted. Amidst the multitude of other interests this great step forward is apt to be overlooked, and yet no single thing that has been done will help more to stabilize the conditions of labor thru out the world and ultimately relieve the unhappy conditions which in too many places have prevailed. Personally I regard this as one of the most satisfying achievements of the conference."

In the President's message to Congress sent from Paris we find the following: "The object in all reform in the essential matter must be the genuine democratization of industry based upon a full recognition of the right of those who work, in whatever rank, to participate in some organic way in every decision which directly affects their welfare or the part they have to play in industry."

In the Peace Treaty we find the promise of "a wage adequate to maintain a reasonable standard of life and an 8-hour day or 48 hour week."

In speaking of "industry," does the president include Agriculture, the great basic industry and does he mean the farmer should be allowed "to participate in some organic way in every decision which directly affects their welfare or the part they have to play in industry."

Mr. Chas. M. Schwab, the head of one of our mighty steel plants and the man who had charge of ship building during the last year of the war, not many moons since, expressed himself as to the future in strong words. He said, "We are at the threshold of a new social era.....It means but one thing, and that is that the man who labors with his hands, who does not possess prosperity, is the one who is going to dominate the affairs of this world, not merely of Russia, Germany and the United States, but the whole world."

(I quote the preceding from another's quotation of Mr. Schwab and I presume that in the original the speaker goes on to say that this will be true unless our thinking men steer Uncle Sam in the straight and narrow patch where he gives a square deal to the business man, the farmer and the men in the professions as well as to the man without property who labors with his hands.)

Let us consider further the tendencies of the hour.—(Continued.)

Big Lot of Hay Fever Jokes

But Kentucky Man Says—"People Who Belong to Hay Fever Colony are Kidding Themselves."

Wouldn't Be Any Rose or Hay Fever if Simple Home Remedy Was Given a Chance.

"Yes, there's a real NINTY-NINE per cent effective remedy for hay or rose fever," frankly states a druggist in a prosperous Kentucky city.

"But I don't expect anyone to believe me, because the treatment is so easy and the cost not worth mentioning."

"The annual crop of hay-fever jokes would be mighty scarce if people would get an ounce of Mentholized Arcine and by just adding water that has been boiled make a pint of liquid that will prove a real help to all who suffer."

"Many of my hay-fever friends tell me that by starting to gargle and snuff or spray the nostrils a few times a day the expected severe attack often fails to appear and in cases where it does show up is very mild and does not annoy."

"The Better Class of Pharmacists" who dispense Mentholized Arcine say it will greatly modify any attack even when taken three or four days after hostilities begin.

Go to a real live druggist when you get ready to make a pint.

Special rates will prevail on the railroads. Round trip tickets will be sold for fare and a half from all points within a radius of 75 miles of Coshocton.

HOME-GROWN FEEDS CHEAPER FOR DAIRYMEN

That dairy farmers should make more use of home-grown feeds during the period of high priced products is pointed out by the department of dairying at the Ohio Experiment Station after a number of feeding tests with dairy cattle It is shown that in some cases farmers market their oats at approximately 70 cents a bushel and buy ground oats in mixed feed again at a much higher price, with additional labor requirements in hauling and handling. Farmers having a supply of oats and corn can mix their own rations for dairy cattle at least $1 per hundred pounds cheaper and with probably better results, it is shown A special circular is issued by the Experiment Station, Wooster, on the home-mixing of feeds for dairy cattle.

CRAZED MAN FIRES INTO HUGE CROWD

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 29.—A crazed man ran amuck here last night and fired several shots from a revolver into the mass of 5000 persons gathered at the city play grounds, injuring three persons. He was shot and believed fatally wounded by a policeman.

The crowd was gathered around the bandstand listening to a concert when the man dashed from his bench, to the middle of the street and turning, drew a revolver and fired into the mass of people. Patrolman Thomas Ellis ran towards the man, who turned the weapon at him and snapped the trigger. The cartridge failed to explode.

Ellis drew his own revolver and shot the man above the heart. The wounded man ran a block before falling. The maniac's bullets struck a man in the arm, narrowly missing a baby he was carrying; hit another one in the hand and inflicted a flesh wound in the side of the third.

CANTON

CANTON, O., Sept. 29.---"Mother" Jones, the 90 year old "angel of the miners," addressed a crowd of 5000 or more here yesterday afternoon in the interest of the striking steel workers.

She particularly addressed herself to men of alien blood. "You are not foreigners," she said. "The only foreigners in this country are Judge Gary and his gang."

SUPPLEMENTAL FEEDS AID IN PIG GROWING

Tests in swine feeding at the Ohio Experiment Station show that pigs when fed on corn alone make costly and slow gains as compared with the more up-to-date methods of using supplemental feeds, such as tankage or skimmilk, with corn.

Pigs fed on corn only have gained less than a pound a day, while a lot fed 9 quarts of corn and one part tankage gained nearly twice as much and required almost 20 per cent less feed per pound of gain. Another lot fed equal parts corn and skimmilk gained practically the same as those fed corn and tankage.

It is pointed out that when hogging down corn pigs need from three-tenths to five-tenths of a pound of tankage daily as a supplement to the corn They are able to consume larger amounts of corn more efficiently and thus produce pork at a cheaper cost per pound.

workers in the steel plants in Weirton have been deputized as officers and it was reported machine guns were brot into the city in addition to a large supply of small arms.

Advices from Steubenville today stated that the threatened invasion of West Virginia had been definitely called off. Officers of the national guard were unable to say whether this development would cause the mobilization order to be withdrawn.

Colonel Ben Hough, of Delaware, is in charge of the mobilization. At a meeting held in the state house Sunday night, Major Walter W. Van Giesen, Captain John S. Bailey and Captain H. H. Grave, were appointed members of Hough's staff

It was decided at the meeting to mobilize twelve infantry companies and three auxiliary companies immediately.

Colonel Hough today said the units of the national guard were at the following places.

Ashland, Akron, Shreve Saint Marys, Marion, Marysville, Athens and New Lexington.

ATHENS, O., Sept. 29. — Captain Jud Stinchcomb, company commander in the Argonne fighting of the 37th division, and two lieutenants who fought in the Rainbow division, have the sixty men of the Athens national guard company mobilized here ready for service anywhere.

A number of the men in this outfit saw fighting of the hardest kind in France.

AKRON, O., Sept. 29. — Company B, Captain Sam Cole, and headquarters company Captain Dan Webster are under orders at the armory awaiting orders from Governor Cox to move to Steubenville. The two companies have about 100 men, many of whom saw service in the Argonne forest and St Mihel region in France Captain Cole's original company lost about forty men in the overseas fighting

IMPORTATION OF MANY FINE FLOWERS STOPPED

Flower lovers are beginning to feel the effects of the quarantine established by the Federal Horticultural Board on June 1, restricting the importation of many of our finest flowers which we were receiving yearly from foreign countries. The quarantine is directed against the importation of foreign insect pests and plant diseases, the contention being that America should restrict the entrance of any more pests into our country. It affects principally in importation of greenhouse azaleas, boxwoods, evergreens, perennial plants of the choicer varieties, hydrangeas and orchids, the named varieties of roses, and all of the bulbs except lilies, narcissi, hyacinths, tulips, begonias, freesias, gloxinias, bulbous irises and tuberoses.

In time it may be possible for us to grow all of these various plants for ourselves, but for the propagation of many of them our conditions are not favorable and our labor would seem to be too expensive.

and third story windows, while the crowd howled with glee. The jail was on the first floor.

Sheriff Clark took his prisoner to the roof, in an effort to escape the heat from the burning building. Nearly a hundred other prisoners begged the sheriff to turn over the negro to placate the mob's fury, in order that they might be saved. The sheriff refused.

Snipers from the mob were sent to the roofs of nearby buildings and fired on the little group huddled on the roof of the building. When flames reached the fourth floor, firemen arrived on the scene. They were immediately overpowered and their ladders taken from them Clark was forced to surrender his prisoner, who was taken down a ladder.

The mob tore every stitch of clothing from the black's body as soon as he was seized The noose was adjusted around his neck and his body hoisted about six feet from the ground when shot guns and revolvers were turned loose into it.

After members of the crowd took the body down they tied it to a police patrol wagon which they had taken from officers, and dragged it thru the principal streets and the negro district, where they threw it into the fire, which other members had prepared, gasoline was poured on a large number of railroad ties and other lumber, and the body was tossed on the blaze.

More lumber was heaped on the blaze. A crowd estimated at 3,000 men, women and children saw the body burn. Many pushed near the funeral pyre in an effort to get pieces of the body for souvenirs. The rioters stopped automobiles and took gasoline from the tanks to pour on the blaze.

Thirty one men were arrested by police All were found to be carrying guns and ammunition and are being held without bail.

Federal troops arrived here early today to aid local authorities in quelling mob rule which held Omaha in its grip since Sunday afternoon. The soldiers were ordered into the city by Major General Leonard Wood, commander of the Central Division, when police and deputies lost control of the situation.

Trouble started when a mob demanded that Sheriff Michael Clark turn over Will Brown, a negro, charged with assault on a white girl.

Police and deputies, working under the direction of Mayor Edward P. Smith, fought off the mob until midnight when the jail night when with the jail afire the mayor unconscious and several police and deputies seriously injured, they were forced to give in. Brown was hung to a nearby electric light pole and his body riddled with bullets.

Frank Clancy was killed when the police fired into the mob. Several others were seriously injured.

Mayor Smith was saved from being lynched by the valor of a squad of police who charged into the mob after a rope had been tied around the mayor's neck.

The mayor appeared in the doorway of the court house in the early part of the evening with a pistol in his hand. He refused demands for the negro. A report spread thru the crowd which numbered thousands, that the mayor had killed Clancy.

The mayor was seized beaten into unconsciousness and a rope had been placed around his neck when police charged the mob. One policeman cut the rope while others beat off the crowd

The mayor was taken to a hospital where his condition was reported serious. The jail is located on the fifth floor of Douglas-co's new $1,500,000 court house. The mob, composed of both men and women packed the streets for blocks around the building. Hundreds of shots were fired thru the windows and bricks and stones were thrown by the mob.

Late in the evening the building was set afire. Efforts of firemen to combat the blaze were futile as the mob cut the hose. Nearly a hundred other prisoners, with the fire closing in around them, cried and shrieked for the sheriff to give up the negro.

The main part of the mob, was in front of the building and it was there that the sheriff concentrated his resistance. A small number of men found their way to the rear of the building. A steeple jack scaled the wall to the fifth floor and let down a rope. Led by a man dressed in a sailor's uniform, a score of men then climbed the rope and overpowered the police and deputies. The negro was shoved thru the door. He was naked. He was grabbed by the mob and was killed in a few minutes. His body was then tied to an auto and dragged thru Omaha's northside, the negro settlement.

The mob was well armed, as one of the largest gun and ammunition stores in the city was looted before the attack on the jail started.

Light sentences imposed on negroes found guilty of attacking white women, is given by police as the reason for the mob taking the law into its own hands.

There have been forty attacks on women in Omaha and Council Bluffs, the last two months. Public sentiment against negroes has been steadily increasing.

In Council Bluffs several hundred returned soldiers formed a vigilance committee and patrolled streets all night for several weeks.
